D'ARCY JOHNSON LAW FIRM AND LAW OFFICES OF CHRISTOPHER M. DAY MERGE TO FORM
PREMIER LITIGATION FIRM

With nine attorneys and four Southern New Jersey office locations, D'Arcy Johnson Day, P.C. will concentrate on all areas of litigation practice.

Atlantic City, NJ – July 1, 2008 – The D'Arcy Johnson Law Firm, with offices located in Northfield, Galloway Township and Toms River, New Jersey, and the Law Offices of Christopher M. Day, located in Atlantic City, announced today that the two litigation firms have merged to form D'Arcy Johnson Day, P.C.

The newly formed law firm will concentrate on all areas of litigation practice, including personal injury, workers' compensation, divorce, business planning/disputes, nursing home neglect and medical malpractice. With nine experienced attorneys, all of whom have reputations for dedicated and aggressive representation, and four offices located throughout Southern New Jersey, the firm is positioned to immediately become regarded as one of the area's top litigation law firms.

The attorneys at D'Arcy Johnson Day, P.C. are Patrick T. D'Arcy, Andrew J. D'Arcy, Steven K. Johnson, Christopher M. Day, Richard J. Albuquerque, Bard L. Shober, Karin G. Hassel, Kevin J. Musiakiewicz, and Gregory J. Hock. Both Patrick D'Arcy and Richard Albuquerque are certified by the Supreme Court of New Jersey as civil trial attorneys, a distinction held by less than two percent of New Jersey attorneys.

"Separately, the D'Arcy Johnson Law Firm and the Law Offices of Christopher M. Day have helped thousands of clients and have obtained tremendous results through trial verdicts and settlements; in doing so, we have developed reputations for both integrity and success in the courtroom," said Patrick T. D'Arcy, Principal of the newly formed firm. "We look forward to combining our resources and our expertise as we serve our quickly growing client base throughout Southern New Jersey."
